

Jan Kessel Bio

Jan Kessel is a Los Angeles born photographer now based in the Pacific Northwest. In her youth she won UNICEF's Child of the Year International competition. She studied at UCLA and Art Center College of Design. Kessel then embarked on a business and entrepreneurial career, but continued to take photographs, concentrating on the natural landscape. In the last decade she has returned to Fine Art Photography, immersing herself in the natural world in a quest to capture and share the beauty and magic she sees.

Kessel is especially interested in using photography as a component in healing, and her work can be found in medical and non-medical spaces around the world.

Jan has exhibited in the USA, as well as Internationally.
